

RITE NOW @ ROP

Students at Sycamore Canyon Academy showed community service by helping clear and make a play area where children will be able to sit and play. Little Hooves Big Hearts are a therapeutic program that uses miniature horses to help children with special needs, seniors and others to improve their mental and physical health. SCA students gave input on what children with disabilities may like and help create a safe and comfortable area where they can play. Students learned the value of community service by; giving back and creating something that will help build a place where children with disabilities can play. Children will be able to sit and rest while they play. After students worked on trails, brush area and removed rocks they were able to “Play”. Students got to groom, pet, and even do some tricks with the horses, all while receiving therapy themselves. SCA has worked with little Hooves Big Hearts for more than 10 years and have scheduled monthly community service projects for our students.
